

All images are pulled from the pages of NEW YORK SPACES. Left page: Frette store courtesy of Janson Goldstein; photographer Mikko Kikuyama. Top right photographer: Anastassios Mentis. W Hotel courtesy of W Hotels Worldwide. Bottom left photographer: Peter Margonelli. Apartment photographer: Peter Burdick. Muesli shop courtesy of Ralph Pucci International. This page: Andra West Hollywood RH Restaurant courtesy of Janson Goldstein; photographer Mikko Kikuyama. Bottom left courtesy of Belmont Freeman Architects; photographer: Christopher Wesnotak. Bottom right courtesy of Hagedornhagen; page: bochmagazin.com.

READERSHIP

With a composition of 70% female and 30% male,

NEW YORK SPACES readers are educated, exacting and engaged design professionals and home enthusiasts.

They are also affluent, with an average household income exceeding $250,000.

IN THEIR COMMUNITIES, THEY ARE REGARDED AS DISCRIMINATING acquirers and standard-bearers of taste. Whether building, remodeling, buying or selling, they are actively investing in their own and in their clients' homes. Intrigued with and ardent about design and all its permutations, they look to NEW YORK SPACES as the essential go-to-guide for inspiration and insight. Embodying the finest in design and providing insider access, NEW YORK SPACES commands the attention of those high net-worth homeowners and influential, world-class designers when they are ready to buy.

